3.2. Research Paper Trajectory

Themes for MGP papers this semester will focus: "Digital Mission", "Diaspora Engagement", and "Marketplace Ministry". Every few years, missiologists innovate or adopt models to address the mission task amid changing global realities. Some changes have enjoyed a long "tail life" and endure for decades. Others are quickly abandoned. Unfortunately, the mission community often moves on to the next approach without adequately evaluating the usefulness of earlier approaches, or the ramifications for the future mission work.

As we move into the latter part of 2022, these three themes have become more prevalent with the advancement of a number of global factors that have opened up new pathways and opportunities to engage in mission. Increasingly, each of these three ministry spheres is becoming a common way to engage in global mission.

As missiologists and reflective practitioners, we need to anticipate the future of mission and examine emerging opportunities given our new realities. Western Christians in particular need to be attentive to the strengths and limitations of new ways of engaging in mission.

Academic dishonesty is taken seriously at Ambrose University as it undermines our academic standards and affects the integrity of each member of our learning community. Any attempt to obtain credit for academic work through fraudulent, deceptive, or dishonest means is academic dishonesty. Plagiarism involves presenting someone else's ideas, words, or work as one's own. Plagiarism is fraud and theft, but plagiarism can also occur by accident when a student fails or forgets to acknowledge to another person's ideas or words. Plagiarism and cheating can result in a failing grade for an assignment, for the course, or immediate dismissal from the university. Students are expected to be familiar with the policies in the current Academic Calendar that deal with plagiarism, cheating, and the penalties and procedures for dealing with these matters. All cases of academic dishonesty are reported to the Academic Dean and become part of the student's permanent record.
